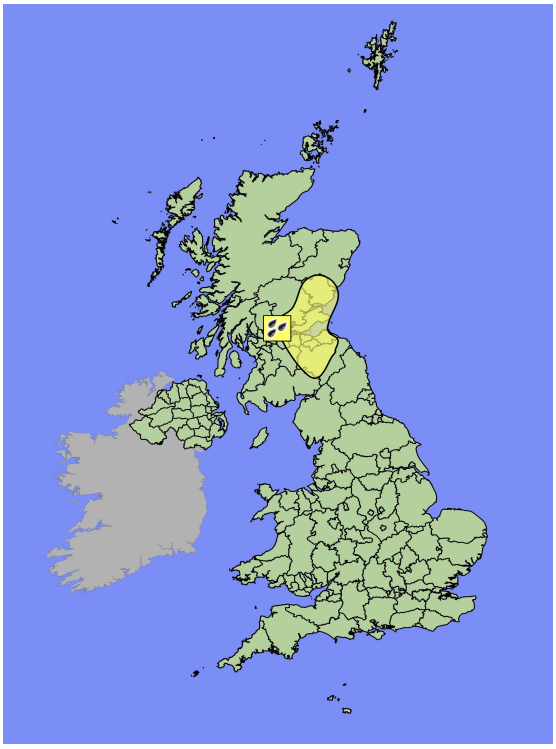
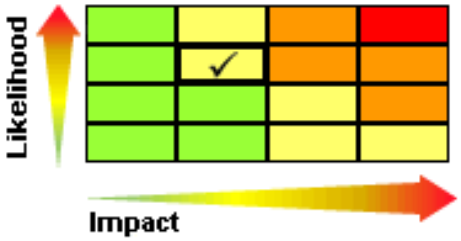
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Another frontal system will move eastwards across Scotland on Monday bringing further heavy rain in places. Whilst there remains some uncertainty regarding the details, it is unlikely to be as heavy or persistent as in recent days, but falling on saturated ground, the rain could cause further problems.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 12:00 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012 until 23:59 on Mon, 24th Dec 2012

Outbreaks of rain will spread across Scotland on Monday. While not expected to be as heavy as over the last few days, it may be rather heavy and persistent at times. This may add to the risk of further flooding over still saturated ground in some parts and the public should be aware it could bring more disruption to travel. The rain should gradually clear eastern Scotland in the evening.
